This week's topic is important to teamwork because if we understand people's personalities and strengths, we can work better as a team. I plan on contributing to the team by using my strengths to better contribute to the team as well as help others with their strengths. My experience is that when you really understand someone's personality and their strengths, I can more effectively use them in my team as I can assign them responsibilities that play to their strengths and avoid giving them jobs that they would most likely not perform well in. I believe that my classmates have very similar experiences with playing to your team's strengths. I taught my girlfriend about what we learned about in class and had her take the personality test and we talked about the different things in the personality test. She learned that by understanding someone's personality, you can have a better relationship with them. The situation was that my girlfriend asked me about what I learned about in class today. My task was to tell her about the personality test. My action was to have her take the test and compare our results. The result was my girlfriend had a better understanding of our personalities and how we can help each other better. If this was a religion class, this week's topic would relate because we are all very different but we are all children of God and should love and respect others even with our differences.
